

Welcome to Peggy Blumenberg Eldredge

This issue of Zygon inaugurates the tenure of Peggy Blumenberg Eldredge as executive editor of the journal. In addition to the duties ordinarily associated with this position, she also takes a significant step in further computerizing the editing and production of Zygon. Typesetting and editing will now be done by Peggy in the editorial offices, by computer.

Peggy comes to her new position with broad experience in journal production, including more than twelve years as executive editor of the journal Currents in Theology and Mission, as well as work in subscription management, promotion, layout, copy-editing, proof-reading, and business management.

Readers will become acquainted with our new executive editor through the printed page. Authors and prospective authors will know her through her care and management of their manuscripts, as they make their way through our editorial processes. All of us look forward to the guidance Peggy will give to our journal's editing and production.
